publisher's notes

The Winter Market at Chicago and Grand Rapids proved to be a fairly good one with buying steady. Not too many new designs were shown in the contemporary field and most of those were from manufacturers who are gradually bringing contemporary designs into their line. To your editor, it appeared that many firms were improving their lines quality-wise and emphasising new finishes and the natural beauty of woods. In general, wrought iron metal furniture, except for the better summer furniture manufacturers, was slowly disappearing from the Market. Only the quality products were very much in evidence and they enjoyed their usual good business. Cheap metal furniture has had its day.

The Leathergoods Group under the guiding hand of Martha Schaeffer, staged an outstanding exhibition in the form of room-settings. It is interesting indeed to note the greatly increased participation of the homefurnishings industry and the co-operation of the various furniture and fabric manufacturers in tying-in their products by using the many qualities and colors of leather.

Recently, the Executive Furniture Guild of Grand Rapids conducted a survey on the subject closest to their heart, namely the American executives business office. The survey was well done and developed a great many interesting facts which we will present in the next issue for the general benefit of our readers. Currently, the Executive Furniture Guild is conducting a national competition among secretaries which promises to bring out further evidence of a wealth of business available to the executive furnishings industry.

As your editor travels around the country visiting key cities and even the small communities, he cannot but help see the many, many new office buildings rising, all of which will require new furnishings. The potential business is certainly there and enough business is available to keep the office furniture manufacturers busy for some time.

FURNITURE FORUM enters it's eighth year with this issue. If the old saying, "the first seven years are the hardest" proves true, we will be mightily pleased but as of the moment it appears that you have to work harder with each year just to keep abreast of the pace.

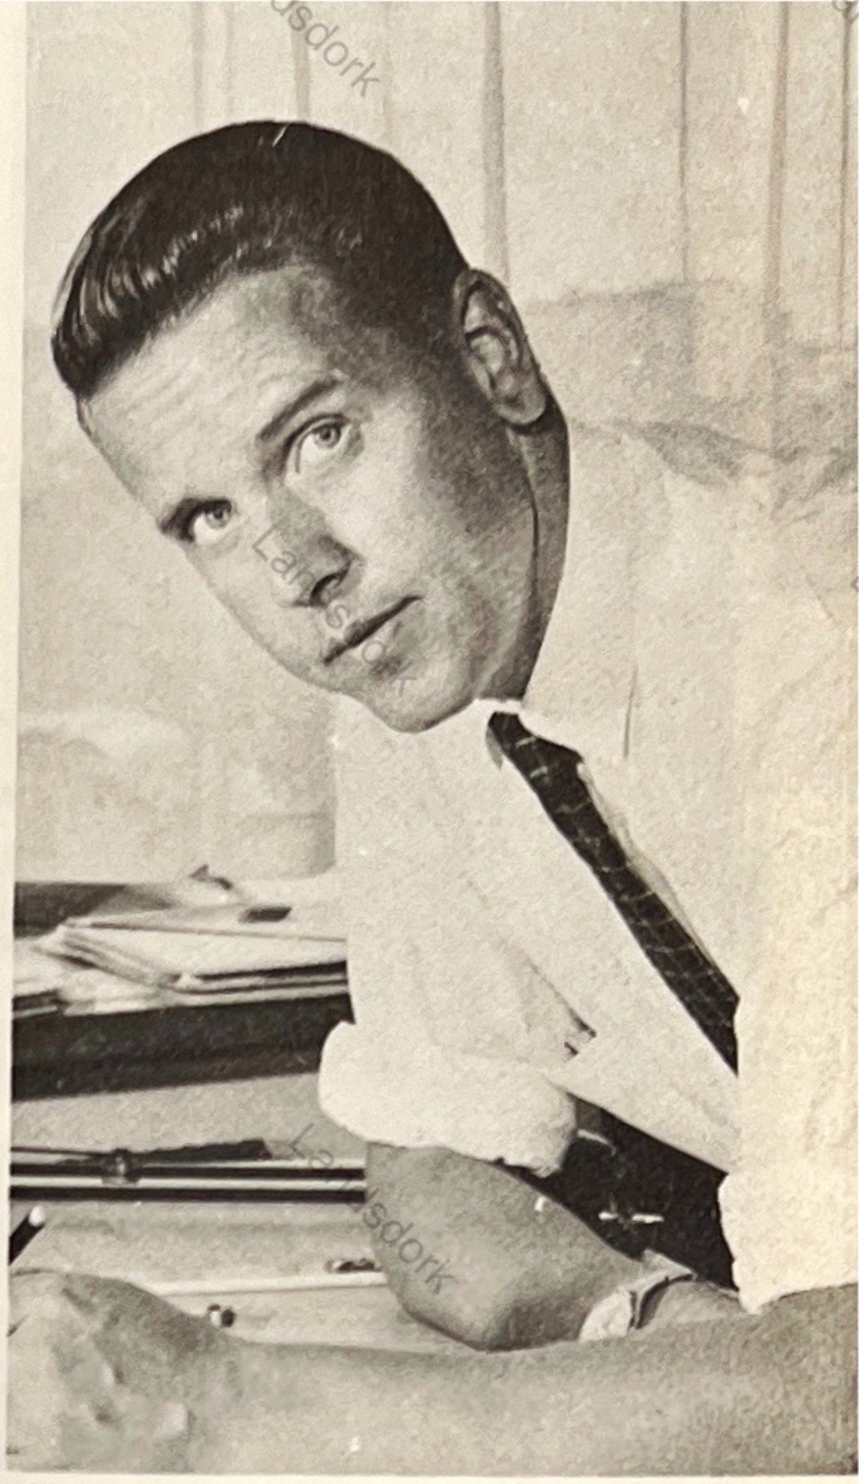
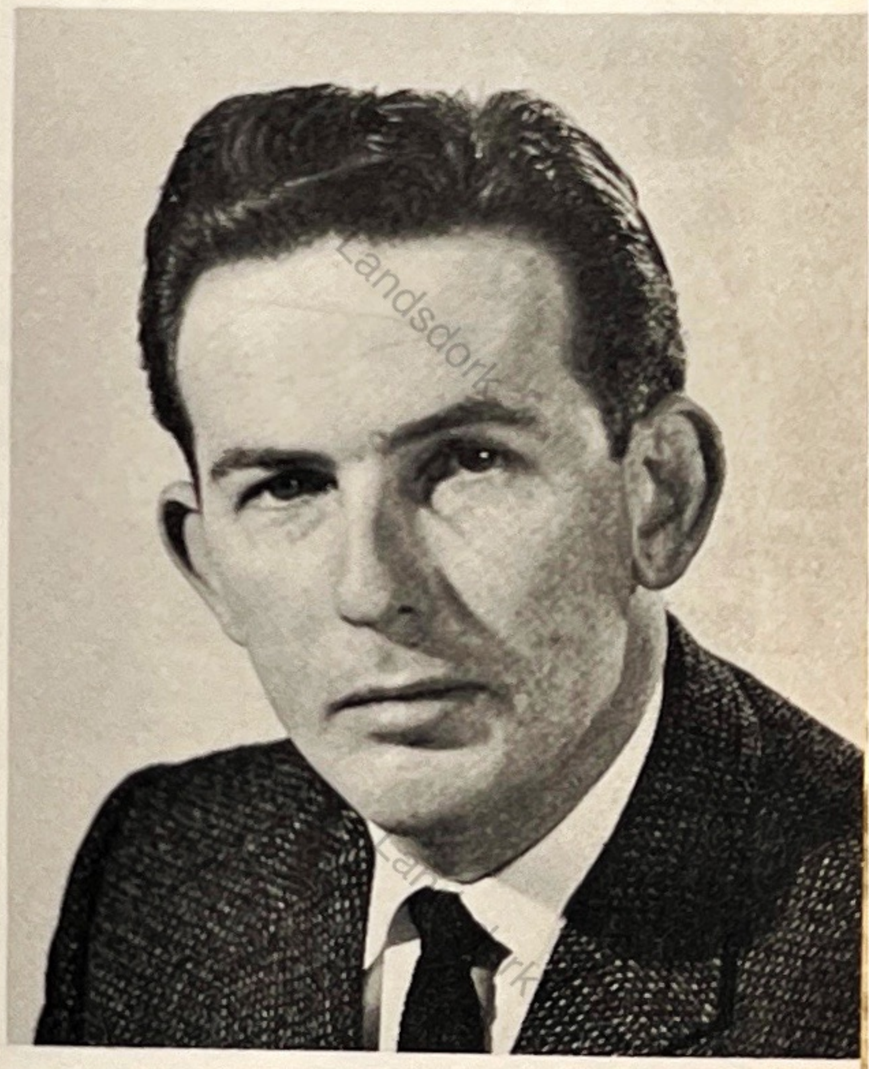
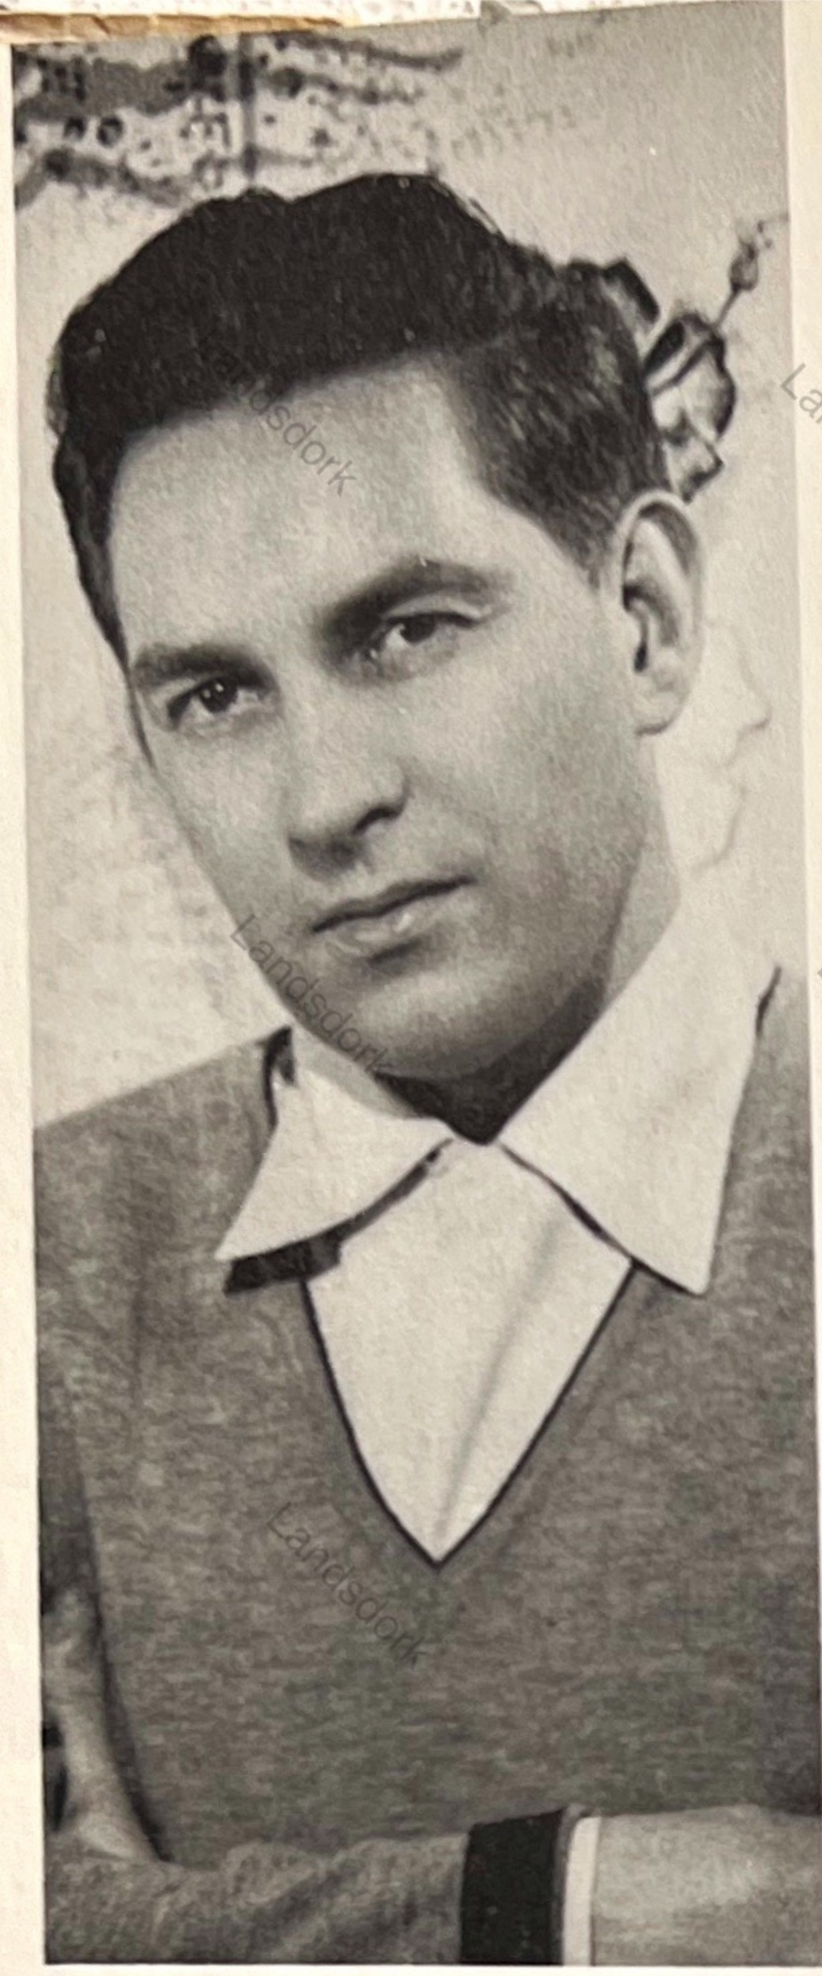
FOLKE OHLSSON was trained in Europe as an architect and designer. Coming to America from his native Sweden in 1950, he brought many furniture designs he had developed as chief designer for the DUX Company in Malmo, Sweden. In the short space of eight years, travelling over the United States, he has firmly established the name of DUX with architects, interior decorators, department stores, interior designers, retail furniture stores and contract furnishers. The line is now seen coast to coast in hotels, hospitals, motels, homes and offices. Showrooms have been established in key cities throughout the country to serve the homefurnishings industry. Mr. Ohlsson has done much to help the wide acceptance of Scandinavian design.



ROBERT ALAN MARTIN native New Yorker received his early education in New York City, then went west to attend the University of California at Los Angeles where he received his degree. Becoming interested in interior design, he attended the Chouinard Art Institute and upon graduation, joined Sieberts of Los Angeles, as design consultant and later went to Sieberts at Beaverton Oregon. Moving east again, after doing some free-lance designing, he joined Mills-Denmark as chief designer, which position he currently holds.

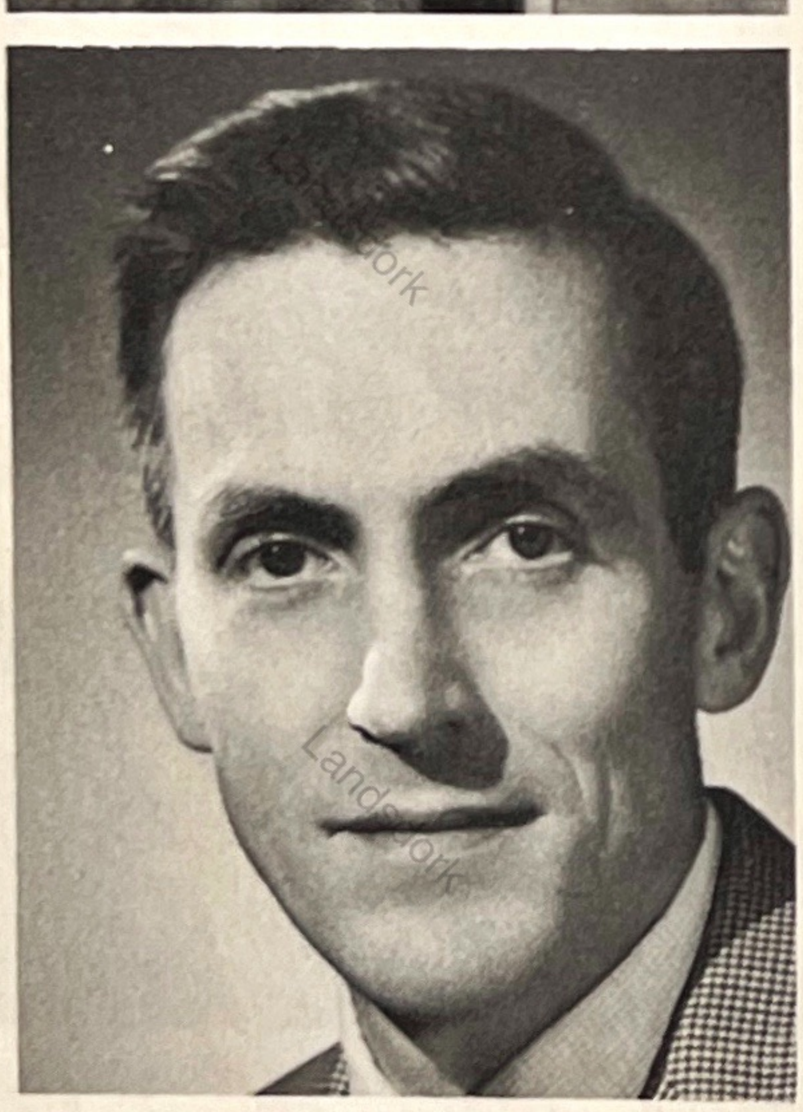


CLIFTON COOK graduated with honors from Averett Junior College in 1955 and then went to Sarasota, Florida to attend the Ringling School of Art where he is now a 3rd year senior. Recently as a class problem, Mr. Charles W. Riley, conducted a student competition to design a magazine cover for FURNITURE FORUM. Thirty-nine entries were submitted. The jury comprising of Philip Hiss, Max Harmon, and Phill Hall, by unanimous decision, awarded top honors to Clifton Cook with special commendation for excellence of problem execution. In an early issue, the award winner cover will be presented.



DONALD K. SODERLUND comes from Superior, Wisconsin where he attended State Teachers College and received his degree as a teacher. Following three years in the Air Force, he attended the Art Institute of Chicago and the Institute of Design, majoring in photography and industrial design. In 1954 and 1955, he received the A.I.D. Design Award. Co-founder of Denst & Soderlund, the firm is now engaged in designing and manufacturing wallpaper and fabrics.

JOHN R. DENST grew up in Chicago and received a scholarship at the Institute of Design, studying under Moholy Nagy. After service in World War II, he finished studies at the Art Institute of Chicago. After a stint at teaching at Chicago's Hull House, he went to New York where he worked in the commercial art field. Returning to Chicago in 1947, he joined Don Soderlund to form their present firm. Designer of furniture, lamps, ceramics, fabrics, showrooms and commercial interiors, he has exhibited in many American and European museums and received many awards.



CLARENCE HAWKING was born in Chicago and studied at the Art Institute following his war service. Upon graduation he worked in display design and commercial art for several years and in 1951 joined Denst & Soderlund as a staff designer of wallpaper and fabrics. He also handles color research and layout. Is married and a proud papa of four children.

TED RAMSAY came from San Francisco where he designed and manufactured handprinted wallpapers. Now associated with Denst & Soderlund, he has designed "Translation One", a collection of exclusive wallpapers for this firm, who print and distribute the line. Six designs from the "Translation" collection have been adapted for drapery fabrics and are printed and distributed by W. B. Quaintance Co.
